CONCEPT NOTE:

Online exploitation of children is a global epidemic that is increasing at an alarming rate. The expansion of the Internet, advances in information and communications technologies (ICTs), and the development of increasingly sophisticated digital tools that provide anonymity, resulted in the number of potential victims to grow exponentially. Children and young people are connected online and it's estimated that one in three Internet users worldwide are under the age of 18 years.

As reported by the International Centre for Missing & Exploited Children, in early 2020, at any given point of time, approximately 750,000 individuals across the world are looking to connect with children and young people online for sexual exploitation. The pandemic-induced lockdown and increased digital dependency have worsened this menace. Exploiters of the online platforms operate across national borders, and legislation has not been updated to adequately address issues regarding legal jurisdiction. It requires the combined efforts of Governments, technology companies, research institutions, civil society organizations, donors, and many others to combat these transnational crimes against children by providing successful interventions and legal assistance.

OBJECTIVE OF THE CONFERENCE:

This conference aims to create awareness of the inherent risks and challenges children face online and various protection offered by law. The organizers intend to brainstorm on recent trends in online exploitation against children in India and worldwide. We would like to proffer a workable approach to combat online exploitation of children by collective intelligence of academicians, legal professionals, law enforcement agencies, students, parents and other stakeholders.
